APPELLANT’S REPLY BRIEF

COMES NOW, Appellant, REZA ZANDIAN (“ZANDIAN”) by and through his attorneys, KAEMPFER CROWELL, and hereby submits his reply to the Respondent’s Answering Brief (“Answering Brief”), filed November 17, 2014 with this Court.¹

ARGUMENT

I. Nevada law required MARGOLIN to serve ZANDIAN with notice of MARGOLIN’s intent to have judgment entered by default, and the failure to provide the required notice renders the judgment in this case void.

The Answering Brief spends only a paragraph responding to the primary defect in this case: the failure to provide a notice of intent to take default.² On this point, MARGOLIN first argues:

With regard to the notice of intent to take a default, the notice requirement of NRCP 55 was also fulfilled as Margolin also served written notice of the application for default judgment to Zandian’s last known address.³

¹ A reply brief “must be limited to answering any new matter set forth in the opposing brief.” NRAP 28(c). Accordingly, only those arguments which were not addressed in Appellant’s Opening Brief are addressed herein.

² The Answering Brief does not dispute that ZANDIAN had “appeared” in the case and the notice requirement was thereby triggered. See NRCP 55(b)(2); Lindblom v. Prime Hospitality Corp., 120 Nev. 372, 375, 90 P.3d 1283, 1285 (2004); Christy v. Carlisle, 94 Nev. 651, 654, 584 P.2d 687, 689 (1978)).

³ Answering Br. at 19:9-15 (citing J.A. at Vol. IV, 750).

1 In other words, MARGOLIN asserts that Nevada law does not require an
2 independent notice of intent. Rather, the actual application for default
3 judgment itself satisfies Nevada’s notice requirement. No legal authority is 4 cited in support of the proposition. And the argument is not consistent with 5 Nevada law on the issue.⁴ Clearly, MARGOLIN was required to serve
6 ZANDIAN with advance notice of his intent to seek the default judgment in 7 this case.

9 Strict compliance with notice requirements was especially vital in this 10 case where there are numerous procedural irregularities. First, although 11 NRCP 55(b)(2) contemplates a “prove-up hearing” in order to establish the 12 correct amount of damages for judgment, no such hearing was held in this 13 case.⁵ The absence of a hearing allowed MARGOLIN’s inflated allegations
14 of damage to pass unexamined.⁶ More importantly, the decision to forego
15

17 ⁴ See Lindblom, 120 Nev. at 375-76, 90 P.3d at 1284-85; Epstein v.
18 Epstein, 113 Nev. 1401, 1404-05, 950 P.2d 771, 772-73.

19 ⁵ See Hamlett v. Reynolds, 114 Nev. 863, 866-67, 963 P.2d 457, 458-20 59 (1998) (affirming court’s award of default judgment entered 21 following prove-up hearing).

22 ⁶ The lack of critical examination is substantiated by the fact that 23 MARGOLIN’s Application for Default Judgment; Memorandum of 24 Points and Authorities in Support Thereof requested an award of $1,497,328.90 in damages. See J.A. at Vol. III, 492. However, the Default Judgment—submitted to the District Court by MARGOLIN—awarded a different sum, $1,495,775.74. See J.A. at Vol. III, 541.
There is no explanation for the discrepancy. Indeed, all indications

1 any hearing repudiated any ability of ZANDIAN to appear and challenge the 2 assertions of MARGOLIN before the Court.

3 Second, the manner in which MARGOLIN directed the proceedings
4 in this case—whether by intention or by happenstance—created significant 5 confusion. This confusion was compounded by the fact that ZANDIAN was 6 unrepresented by counsel. All of the following took place after 7 ZANDIAN’s counsel was allowed to withdraw:
8

- 9 • On May 15, 2012, MARGOLIN moved for an order compelling
10 the Optima Entities to lodge an appearance of counsel.⁷
 - 11 ○ MARGOLIN attempted to serve this document by mail
12 to ZANDIAN at “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.” in San Diego, 13 California. However, the zip code on the certificate of 14 service is “82122.”⁸ The address provided by 15 ZANDIAN’s counsel upon withdrawal identified a zip
16 code of “92122.”⁹
17
18

19 are that the difference was the result of a typographical error which 20 went unnoticed.

21 ⁷ See J.A. Vol. II, 329-33.

22 ⁸ See J.A. Vol. II, 333.

23 ⁹ See J.A. Vol. II, 308, 320. 92122 appears to be an existing zip code
24 utilized in San Diego. See <http://www.city-data.com/zipmaps/San-Diego-California.html> (last visited Dec. 17, 2014). 82122 does not appear to be a valid zip code in the United States.

- On June 28, 2012, the District Court issued an order requiring the Optima Entities to lodge an appearance of counsel.¹⁰
 - That order was sent to ZANDIAN at the “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.” address.¹¹ Again, the erroneous 82122 zip code was utilized.¹² And on this document’s certificate of service, the address included an apartment number.¹³ There is no explanation as to what led to the addition of an apartment number.
 - On July 2, 2012, MARGOLIN mailed a Notice of Entry of Order utilizing the “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.” address, the erroneous zip code, and the unexplained apartment number.¹⁴
- Next, MARGOLIN applied for the entry of a default, but only against the Optima Entities, not against ZANDIAN.¹⁵

○ This document was purportedly served by mail to ZANDIAN utilizing the address “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.” in San Diego, California.¹⁶ This time the correct zip code, 92122, was utilized.¹⁷ However, the apartment number was missing.¹⁸

- After the District Court entered the Default pursuant to MARGOLIN’s application, MARGOLIN served a *Notice of Entry of Default*¹⁹ to the “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.” address in San Diego, but again utilized the erroneous zip code, 82122.²⁰
- Subsequently, on October 30, 2012, MARGOLIN applied for a default judgment against the Optima Entities.²¹
- The day after MARGOLIN’s application was filed, the District Court entered Default Judgment against the Optima Entities.²²

²² See J.A. Vol. II, 372-74.

- 1 • MARGOLIN filed and purported to serve notice of the Default
2 Judgment on November 6, 2012.²³
 - 3 ○ The notice was sent to the “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.”
4 address in San Diego utilizing the 92122 zip code, but 5 omitting any apartment number.²⁴
- 7 • Next, after the District Court issued its Order Granting
8 Plaintiff’s Motion for Sanctions Under NRCP 37 against 9 ZANDIAN, MARGOLIN mailed a copy of the Notice of Entry
10 of Order to three addresses: the “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.”
11 address with no apartment number; the same address with an 12 apartment number; and, for the first time, MARGOLIN sent the 13 document to “Alborz Zandian” at “9 Almanzora, Newport
14 Beach, CA 92657-1613.”²⁵
- 15 • Two and a half months after the District Court struck
16 ZANDIAN’s General Denial, MARGOLIN obtained a Default
17 without providing notice and without actually applying for it.²⁶

- Although it was later corrected, MARGOLIN’s initial Notice of Entry of Default did not indicate that default had been entered against ZANDIAN. The initial notice stated, “the Court entered a Default in the above-referenced matter, against Defendants Optima Technology Corporation, a Nevada corporation and Optima Technology Corporation, a California corporation.”²⁷
- Even though a Default Judgment against the Optima Entities already existed, MARGOLIN applied for a new default judgment against the same Optima Entities and ZANDIAN.²⁸
 - The Application for Default Judgment; Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Support Thereof was mailed to the aforementioned “8775 Costa Verde Blvd.” address with the 92122 zip code and an apartment number, but a new address for ZANDIAN was included on the service list, this one at “8401 Bonita Downs Road, Fair Oaks, CA 95628.”²⁹ There is no explanation as to how MARGOLIN came to associate this address with ZANDIAN and why it was not utilized in previous pleadings.³⁰ Further, the “Alborz Zandian” Newport Beach address which had been previously utilized was abandoned without explanation.

- On June 24, 2013, the District Court granted the second Default Judgment identifying all Defendants, ZANDIAN and the Optima Entities, as judgment debtors.³¹

This veritable conundrum would be difficult enough for experienced litigation counsel to navigate. Left to fend for himself without counsel, the expectation that ZANDIAN could maintain a reasonable understanding of the proceedings is simply not realistic. The multiple, constantly shifting addresses for service, the erroneous zip code, the Default Judgment first against the Optima Entities only and later against all Defendants, serve to create substantial confusion. This case raises significant and serious questions as to ZANDIAN’s opportunity to participate. Among others: What happened to those documents which utilized an erroneous zip code?

²⁹ J.A. Vol. III, 475.

³⁰ Of course, at that time, ZANDIAN’s actual address was in Paris, France, see Appellant’s Opening Br. at 8:17-18; J.A. at Vol. IV, 657, a fact to which MARGOLIN’s counsel had ready access. See Appellant’s Opening Br. at 9:1-4, 9 n.42; J.A. at Vol. IV, 660.

³¹ See J.A. at Vol. III, 540-42. Curiously, the first Default Judgment—against the Optima Entities—has never been vacated or formally addressed in any subsequent proceedings.

1 To those which did not specify an apartment number? How and when was
2 the apartment number obtained? What association does “Alborz Zandian”
3 have with ZANDIAN? When was that association discovered? Why is 4 “Alborz Zandian” mailed some documents, but not others? How and when
5 was the Fair Oaks address discovered? Did MARGOLIN or MARGOLIN’s
6 counsel have any information about ZANDIAN residing in Paris, France?

8 Of course, a hearing could have addressed these questions. But no
9 hearing was ever held and the assertions of MARGOLIN slid through 10 without meaningful examination. Under these circumstances, at a minimum, 11 MARGOLIN should be held to the basic requirements of Nevada law, one of 12 which is that he serve ZANDIAN with notice of his intent to seek a default 13 judgment.
14

15 In his paragraph response to the absence of any notice of intent,
16 MARGOLIN also indicates that,

17 The District Court also correctly found NRCP 55 was likely not
18 implicated since the judgment ultimately resulted from sanctions
19 arising from Zandian’s failure to respond to discovery.³²

20 But this mischaracterizes the District Court’s action. Perhaps, the District
21 Court could have sanctioned ZANDIAN in the form of a judgment, and 22 thereby subverted the requirements of NRCP 55. But that is not what the 23

24 ³² See Answering Br. at 19:11-15.

1 District Court actually did. Nor did MARGOLIN request a sanction in that 2 form. Rather, the District Court’s Order Granting Plaintiff’s Motion for 3 Sanctions Under NRCP 37 merely struck the General Denial of 4 ZANDIAN.³³ The assertion that the District Court could have proceeded 5 differently is not a persuasive argument that procedural rules should 6 therefore be ignored.

8 For these reasons and for the reasons expressed in the Opening Brief,
9 this Court should reverse the District Court’s denial of ZANDIAN’s motion
10 to set aside the Default Judgment in this case.

11 II. ZANDIAN’s effort to set aside the Default Judgment was 12 timely.

13 Even though ZANDIAN’s motion to set aside the Default Judgment
14 was filed within the time required by NRCP 60, MARGOLIN claims that it
15 should have been disregarded as untimely. This claim lacks merit.
16

17 As a threshold matter, the six month deadline does not apply to 18 ZANDIAN’s assertion that the Default Judgment is “void” under NRCP
19 60(b)(4).³⁴ But even if it was, there is no evidence—other than 20

21 ³³ See J.A. at II, 421-22.

22 ³⁴ See NRCP 60(b)(4); NRCP 60(b) (“The motion shall be made
23 within a reasonable time, and for reasons (1), (2), and (3) not more 24 than 6 months after the proceeding was taken or the date that written notice of entry of the judgment or order was served.”)

1 MARGOLIN’s bare supposition—that ZANDIAN was aware of the Default
2 Judgment prior to discovering it at the end of 2013 when he engaged counsel
3 to challenge it. To be sure, it is possible that a hearing on the Motion to Set
4 Aside may very well have established an adequate record for the District
5 Court to consider and for this Court to review whether ZANDIAN’s claimed
6 unawareness was credible or not. ZANDIAN, in fact, requested such a
7 hearing.³⁵ However, the request was ignored and the District Court
8 proceeded upon the unexamined assumption of MARGOLIN that 9 ZANDIAN was aware of the Default Judgment in spite of the fact that it was 10 never sent to the address of his actual residence. This was error on the part 11 of the District Court and reversal of its denial of ZANDIAN’s Motion to Set
12 Aside is required.

15 III. The District Court’s dispositive discovery sanction is a 16 proper subject of this appeal.

17 MARGOLIN asserts that this Court should decline review of the 18 District Court’s discovery sanction in this case because ZANDIAN “has 19 appealed only from the denial of his motion to set aside.”³⁶ But this 20 argument endeavors to divide issues which are inherently and inextricably
21 intertwined. ZANDIAN has challenged the entry of the Default Judgment in 23 ³⁵ See J.A. Vol. IV, 662-64.

24 ³⁶ See Answering Br. at 24:8.

1 this case. The cause of the Default Judgment was the District Court’s
2 imposition of the discovery sanction which struck ZANDIAN’s General
3 Denial. To assert that ZANDIAN is entitled to challenge the Default
4 Judgment but not the discovery sanction is to argue that ZANDIAN may 5 challenge only the effect, not the cause.

7 Further, MARGOLIN’s response to the argument lacks merit. Indeed,
8 the case cited in support of their position, Clark County School District v.
9 Richardson Construction,³⁷ actually supports ZANDIAN’s proposition that 10 because the District Court’s sanction in this case was dispositive, the 11 “heightened standards” of Young apply. In Richardson Construction, the 12 trial court attempted to impose a discovery sanction which was limited to 13 eliminating one party’s affirmative defenses.³⁸ A sanction limited in this 14 fashion would not be a dispositive sanction. However, in its application of 15 the limited sanction, this Court determined that the trial court exceeded the 16 scope of that limited sanction and effectively struck the party’s entire 17 answer.³⁹ This Court determined that the trial court had abused its discretion
18 in imposing that dispositive sanction.⁴⁰

 (“Because many of CCSD’s stated affirmative defenses were not true

1 Notably, MARGOLIN does not attempt to argue that the District
2 Court in this case complied with the Young requirements—only that Young
3 is inapplicable. But Young controls this case. Young was not addressed in 4 *Richardson Construction*⁴¹ because the purported sanction was not and was 5 not intended to be dispositive—it only became so in the manner in which it
6 was applied. In contrast, this case involves a sanction which was expressly 7 intended to be dispositive of the case. This distinction between the case at 8 bar and Richardson Construction makes all the difference and clearly 9 establishes that the District Court should have complied with the Young
10 requirements. As there is no dispute that the District Court did not do this,
11 the Default Judgment should be reversed and this Court should remand the 12 case for further proceedings on the merits.
